Reading Employees Firm in Their Great Fight.

Knights of Labor in Philadelphia to Consider the Strike.

All Eyes Turned to the City of Brotherly Love to See if the Order Will Give the Struggle Its Official Sanction - Tom O'Reilly Representing General Master Workman Powderly - No Coal Being Mined or Moved by the Company-Presi dent Corbin Makes No Sign of a Desire to Arbitrate the Difference-An Assault.

READING, Pa., Jan. 10.—There is every indication to-day that the strike of the Reading Company's miners has no immediate prospect of settlement and that it is destined to continue until one side or the other, either labor or capital, is so exhausted as to be forced to capitulate. The main reason for this conclusion rest upon the multiplying evidences that the striking miners have adopted as their own the cause of the striking railroaders.

Arbitration with the miners it now appear must be accompanied by arbitration with the

Judging by the position taken by the rail road company, this is now a thing impossible to expect, and yet the great majority of the miners seem ready to reject any overtures from the Reading managers which will not include a settlement of the railroad strike

The strikers claim to have very greatly strengthened their lines and that men who have been weak or lukewarm or were not have been weak or lukewarm or were not disposed to remain out have entirely changed their attitude.

They say that they can win their fight without calling out the miners of the Wyoming region, but that an order to that effect will be promptly obeyed.

The people of Eastern Pennsylvan. a are praying for a cessation of the strike, and everybody is anxiously awaiting some expression from President Corbin, of the Reading Railroad. Now that the annual meeting has been held all eyes are so turned with eager expectation in the klirection of Philadelphia, where a conference of the strikers will be held to-day with the General Executive Board of the Knights of Labor.

Representatives of several local assemblies left this city this morning to participate in the conference. It has been definitely settled that the employees of the Heading machine and car shops will not be called out.

The greatest fear now of the employees is that the company will curtail operations and that many of them will be discharged.

Rumors in regard to the employees are thick. Last night it was stated that the working hours of the machinists would be reduced from ten to eight, with a corresponding reduction in wages.

To-day it is said that the working force in working hours of the machinists would be reduced from ten to eight, with a corresponding reduction in wages.

To-day it is said that the working force in the carshops will be cut down one-half. The officials say that no such orders have yet been given, but that if the strike continues there will be no work for one-half of the hands at present employed.

The Reading Company's coal traffic is at a standstill. Not a coal train is moving, and according to the miners, not a piece of coal is being mined by the company.

The attempts to keep several collieries in operation with non-union hands have proved abortive. If any coal is being shipped at present from the regions it is invisible to the naked eye.

The company's yards in this city, where trains are made up, presented a deserted appearance. Long side tracks between here and Philadelphia and through every section of the coal regions are filled for miles with empty coal cars.

Railroad are greatly aroused.

The Board of Trade of this city will take action to-night, and council last night appointed a committee of five to suggest arbitration.

The cessation of work at the Pottsville Iron and Steel Company's furnace will soon extend to the steel works, thus throwing over 500 more men out of work.

Nonnisrown, Jan. 10.—Two of the Reading Railroad strikers assaulted a train crew this morning, and a desperate fight ensued for twenty minutes. Several men were badly hurt.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—The looked-for committee of business men from the mining region who were expected to call on President Corbin at the Reading Railroad office to day and urge a settlement of the strike had not materialized up to 11 o'clock, when the newly elected Board of Managers of the company met for organization, with President Corbin in the chair.

Up to this hour the fourth man has not appeared, although Carleton, who lives in this city and who left a day or two ago, is momentarily expected to return.

view to an amiable settlement. The committee was in conference with the heads of the concern at latest advices.

It is very likely that an arrangement satisfactory to both sides will be made and that the forty men now out will return to work.

There is every probability that at least 2,000 men will be out before the close of the present week, and that from 2,000 to 3,000 made will follow unless a settlement is made.

The 250 hands in S. Ottenberg Brothers', who went to work yesterday under a reduction of $1 per 1,000 have made application to strike.

The court-room was jammed. Scarcely had Jadge Mayham taken his seat than Counsellor Harris called William H. Johnson, one of the proprietors of the Albany Arpus to the stand.

By him Mr. Harris tried to prove that the notice of the drawing of petit jurors was not published six days before the drawing.

The faces of both riatt and Nichols were expressions of chagrin when the Court, as on the previous day, decided that the jurors were legally drawn, Ex-Attorney-General O'Brien, however, smiled. The drawing then proceeded.

Ex-Senstor Harris in questioning those impanciled played politics for all he was worth. Every one was saked whether he was a Democrat or a Republican, what his relations with the Governor were, whether he was anxious to oust Platt from the Quarantine Commission, &c.

Another hour was consumed in wrangling over the acceptance or rejection of jurors. Counsellor Harris made a diligent search for Republican jurors, but was grievously disappointed.

The principal controversy was provoked over James Clowrey, a typical son of Erin, who was challenged on the ground that he was ignorant as to who the Governor of the State and the President of the United States are, the court refused to remove him from the box.

Mr. O'Brien finally waived the second count in the charge, which has to do with the filing of the oath of office, and the jury was accepted by both sides.

Another squabble ensued over the question as to Abother squabble ensued over the question as to which side was entitled to the opening argument. Measrs. O'Brien and Moak wrangled for an hour, trying to induce the Judge to give each the first whack at the case.

The argument was still going on at a late hour this afterhoon and Platt's scheme for delay is not yet on the wane.

The jury selected is as follows:
Frederick Geiser, barber, Albany; William A. Carroll, printer, Albany; James Clowrey, blackmith, Albany; Patrick Constantine, laborer, Albany; Henry Drum, carpenter, Voorheesville; Luke Craney, harness-maker, Albany; Vanlinda Osterhaut farmer, Bethlehem; Andrew Becker, Almany; Edwin Slyer, farmer, Guilderland; Smith E. Mayor Hewitt's message was communicated to the Board of Aldermen to-day. It is a very long one, much space being devoted to the financial condition of the city, and is not the scorcher which some politicians had expected, but a business-like document.

Mayor Hewitt makes a great many sugges tions. He begins with a digest of the annual report of the Finance Department. The total amount of stock and bonds of exclusive of revenue bonds, outstanding on exclusive of revenue bonds, outstanding on Dec. 81, 1887, was $128,988,719.45. The amount outstanding on Dec. 31, 1886, was $125,982,735.92. The increase of bonded debt thus amounts to $2,285,983.53.

There were $13,612,154.53 worth of bonds issued during the year for public improvements, all bearing 3 per cent interest. There were cancelled and redeemed during the year by the sinking fund and from special funds bonds to the amount of $11,326,171. In addition to the funded debt the amount of revenue bonds outstanding was $4,554,346.70, so that the total indebt-edness of the city at the close of the year was $132,823,064 15, against $131,601,103.57 due on Dec. 31, 1096.

$132,823,066 15, against $131,601,103.57 due on Dec. 31, 1036.

The net increase of public debt amounts to $1,221,962.58. Of the total amount there was held by the sinking fund the sum of $38,604,066.15. The total bonded debt on Dec. 31, 1887, after deducting the amount in the sinking fund, is $93,300,681.54, being an increase over the amount due at the close of the year 1886 of $2,904,948.19.

The year 1887 is the first since 1878 which has failed to show a reduction in the city's indebtedness.

Mayor Hewitt says that the increase is yery moderate in view of the large sum than in any previous year in its financial history.

In referring to the credit of the city, Mayor Hewitt says:

The credit of the city stands deservedly high. During the year no bonds have been issued bearing a higher rate of interest than 5 per cent., and in almost every case the bonds have commanded a premium—in some instances as high as 4/2 per cent. In my message last year 1 referred to the desirability of refunding the city debt, so that all the bonds bearing a rate of interest at 5 per cent. On careful examination, however, I find that such arrangement could not be effected without paying a very high premium upon the bonds bearing the larger rate of interest. Fortunately, the bonds bearing high rates of interest generally mature within the next ten years.

The Mayor thinks that the amount of funded debt will be increased during the present year, by the requirements of the new Aquednot, the laying out of small parks and improvements to the streets, docks and parks now in existence.

He regards the finances of the city as in a perfectly sound condition and the public moneys in safe hands, and that it is not possible to make any changes by which the burden of interest upon the taxpayers can be reduced.

He admits that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment appropriated $2,708,031 more for 1888 than for 1887. Among the increases are city debt, $798,664.78; rent of public offices, $20,508.50; Law Department, $61,544: special criminal fees to be paid shortly, and incurred under Mayor Grace, $60,000; Department of Public Works, $420,589, chiefly for repavements and repairing of streets; Department of Parks, an increase of $173,900 for increasing the park police force and laying out of small parks.

The Department of Pharks, an increase of $173,900 for increasing the park police force and laying out of small parks.

year. This amount is intended for new buildings and repairs and for salaries of an additional force of physicians. The other large increases in expenditures are: Health Department, $41,769; Police De-partment, $179,388.60: Street-cleaning, $209,-459; Fire Department, $171,727; Board of Education, $309,079.

Education, $309,079.

The rate of tax for this year will be 2.18 as against 2.16 for last year. The Mayor thinks that the slight increase will result in a better public service, the streets will be cleaner, there will be mproved pavements and the institutions of charity will be made at least worthy of their

The Mayor wants the city's representatives in Congress to see that the city gets an un-paid balance of $895,570.61 due from the United States for fitting out regiments dur-

The Mayor suggests that the management of the Brooklyn bridge be placed in charge of an executive officer to be appointed by the Mayors of the two cities.

He refers to the unfair proportion of the State taxes paid by the city.

The abolition of personal taxes in this city would attract to it the capital of the whole world. We are now the centre of exchanges on the Western Continent, but in a few years we should be the Clearing-House for the commerce of the globe. If the city of New York, therefore, could make a bargain with the rest of the State, by which it might be agreed that in hest of taxation upon personal property for State purposes there should be added one-sixth to the amount assessed upon real estate, the present emparrassment in regard to the assessment of personal property would all be relieved. This tax is notoriously impossible of collection in this city. Escape from Death of the Tongwanda's Crew-Buffeted by Wind and Waves.

After drifting about at sea for ten days, hreatened with shipwreck and starvation, the steamer Tonawanda was towed into port to-day by the Philadelphia tug-boat Pro-

The Tonswanda sailed from Doboy, Ga., on Dec. 28, with a cargo of yellow pine for the South Brooklyn Saw-Mill Company. She was provisioned only for the regular trip, which ordinarily takes two days and a half. The accident which disabled her occurred about 7 o'clock on the evening of Dec. 31. The vessel at the time being off the Delaware Five Fathom Light about sixteen miles off shore.

The story of the disaster and of the subsequent bardships is told by Engineer Henry W. Clune, who was found at the South Brooklyn docks this afternoon.

"The accident," he said, "was caused by the breaking of the cross-key connecting the piston-rod with the cross-head. The result was that the cylinder head was blown out with terrific force, the noise of the explosion causing a panic on board for a while.

"The damage could not be repaired, and we were at the complete mercy of the wind and sea.

"The damage could not be repaired, and we were at the complete mercy of the wind and sea.

"Early next morning the mate, carpenter and a sailor volunteered to go ashore for assistance. Two of them were drowned, but we did not hear of their misfortune till we arrived in New York this morning.

"After the first day there was a strong northwest wind blowing off shore and the Tonawanda was drifting rapidly to sea. We also began to get short of provisions, and the crew, becoming discouraged, talked of abandoning the vessel.

"We hung out signals of distress. One of the vessels which passed us was the Colon, of the Pacific Mail line. They came so close that we could see the people on board, and we made every effort to get them to come to our assistance, but the vessel passed us without even replying to our signals.

"We were then about seventy miles out at sea and drifting rapidly. Our stock of provisions had become so reduced that we had nothing left but potatoes and water. There was not a hit of meat on board.

"The next day, when we were almost in despair, the Barkentine Levanta was spoken. She came to our assistance and gave us a supply of meat.

"We did not meet another vessel till we were picked up yesterday morning by the Protector, which was sent to us by Pilot-Boat No. 2, which first spoke us.

"The vessel was at times almost unmanageable in the heavy gales we met. Frequently the big seas went clean over her, but she took them beautifully."

Including the officers and Capt. Brickley's wife and six-mouths-old baby, there were twenty persons aboard the Tonawanda.

Met His Fee in the Station-House. Among the lodgers in the Kingsbridge police station last night were James Cavanagh and Wm. Sheridan. Just before the lights were turned out Sheridan called the doorman and asked him to ar-rest Cavanagh for stabbing him. He said that Cavanagh wounded him in the left shoulder with a table-knife on Sept. 13 and that he had not seen his assatiant since. Cavanage was locked up and Sheridan was held as a wilness.

Baby Bunting Not in Court to Hear the News-His Counsel Ask for a New Trial and Will Take as Appeal-An Extra Allowance of $1,000 Granted by Judge Beach-Miss Campbell's Lawyer Thankful-Only One Juryman Against Her,

Ten times as many people as could be crowded into the court-room in which the breach-of-promise suit of Miss Clara Campbell against Charles Arbuckle for $100,000 damages was tried, were denied admittance by the officers this morning when Mr. Justice Beach was to receive the verdict of the jury The verdict was agreed upon and sealed at 6.30 last evening, after a deliberation of an hour and a quarter.

THE WEIGHT OF A BROKEN HEART.

Speculation was rife as to how much from a financial standpoint the twelve citizens in the box considered that the tender affections of "Dear Bunnie" had suffered from the of "Dear Bunnie" had suffered from the fifty-five-year-old heart-breaker, Defendant Arbuckle. Guesses ranged from $25,000 to $75,000 as a rule.

While all this was going on Justice Beach took his seat, and at 10,30 Clerk Lyon called the roll of jurors, and there was rapt silence in the chamber, so that one might suppose that the people who fairly packed the doors were all holding their breath.

Juror Beter J. McKenna, who should have been in the fourth seat, was absent. The throng looked indignant. Prosently he entered hastily, and explained that he was a restaurateur and came as early as he could. The dozen women in the court were disappointed because Bunnie was not present. Baby Bunting was in all probability wrapping himself up in a new suit of rabbit skins. At any rate he was not in court. Neither was his chief counsel, John E. Parsons, present.

Ex-Judge Fullerton was there, wearing a benign and fatherly expression on his strong, old face, when Clerk Lyon gave a credit mark to Juror McKenna and then tore the end of the envelope containing the verdict of the jury.

There was breathless silence as he asked: "Gentlemen, your verdict is $45,000 for the plaintiff?"

Foreman Meyer Menzie said "Yes," and the other jurors nodded.

Attorney Tilney, for Mr. Arbuckle, moved for a new trial, which was denied, Justice Beach adding, after a moment; "But I will grant a stay of judgment and its execution for forty-five days."

This will give the defendant's counsel time to prepare a bill of exceptions and get ready for the appeal which they will make.

The jury went out at a little after 5 o'clock last evening and a ballot was taken at once as to whether a verdict should be given for Miss Campbell or for Mr. Arbuckle.

DAN DRISCOLL'S FATE NEAR.

The Death-Watch Set on the Condemned Whyo Chief.

A sigh of relief escaped from Warden Walsh when the death-watch came to the Tombs at 8 o'clock this morning to take charge of the refractory condemned murderer, Dan Driscoll.

The party consisted of Order of Arrest Clerk Bernard F. Martin, Under Sheriff John B. Sexton and Deputy Sheriffs Lawrence Delmour, Joseph Young and James Carraher. The first act of the deputy sheriffs was to search Driscoll's cell and person and to make it absolutely certain that he had no means of either injuring his watchers or making an attempt to escape. With this view Driscoll was marched from his old cell to what is to be the new Murderers' Row. It is in the new prison just erected on the site of the Ten-Day House and has been chosen as the future abiding place of the condemned because it is out of the way of the main traffic of the prison.

Driscoll was put in cell 3 on the first tier and was straightway informed that he must strip.

"What in the —— is that for?" he growled. "What in the — is that for?" he growled.
"We have new clothes for you," said
Under Sheriff Sexton, pointing to a brandnew check suit, just bought by the Sheriff for $25, and to another package containing new shoes, a hat, a collar, suffs and underwear.

Driscoll is not likely to need a hat again, but the city, not to be too niggardly, paid $2.50 for a head covering in soft felt.
"I won't take these clothes off," said the Whyo chief, stubbornly. "They're good whyo chief, standornly. They're good enough for me."

So his old clothes had to be torn from his back, while he struggled desperately. The task of putting on the new clothes was much more difficult, but it was at last accomplished. The old clothes, partly in shreds, were taken away and four chairs were brought in.

Foreman Meyer Menzie said "Yes," and the other jurors nodded.

There was a buzz in the room and only a few heard the venerable counsel for Miss Campbell say, fervently: "My client and myself have reason to rejoice!"

The Justice Beach said: "The Court will make an extra allowance of $1,000."

This was for counsel fees for Miss Campbell.

Attorney Tilney, for Mr. Arbuckle, moved rope will be provided.

A few days ago the warden received through Chaplain Lowe a note from a prisoner in cell 15, opposite Driscoll's, saying he had something of importance to communicate. This man told the Warden that he had overheard Driscoll say to another convict. another convict:

another convict:

"Can you get me a chiv?" The last word being the Whyo slang for a knife.

"What in — do you want with a chiv?" asked the other.

"To do up that fat bloke of a Warden," replied Driscoll.

The knife, a common table instrument, was duly furnished, and Discoll secreted it on his person. He would not have been able to get it had not the Warden, on the intercession of Father Gelimes, two weeks ago given the condemned man permission to walk the corridor an hour each day.

Lawyer William F. Howe, counsel for Driscoll, has filed an affidavit preliminary to a motion for a new trial.

coll, has filed an affidavit preliminary to a motion for a new trial.

In the document is is stated that new evidence has been discovered that the testimony of Carrie Wilson, the principal witness for the prosecution, was false.

The matter will be argued before Judge
Andrews, in Supreme Court Chamber, on Friday morning.
